A dividend of 10 per cent was declared at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Union Grove Telephone company recently held at Union Grove. The company is reported to be in a good financial condition. All officers were re-elected. Harvey Nelson was chosen on the board of directors to succeed his father, J. P. Nelson, whose death occurred a short time ago. The officers are: J. S. Blakey, president; W. Z. Callender, manager; Harvey Nelson, J. Spariz and W. D. White, directors. W. D. White, secretary and treasurer, H. Vyvyan and Edward Skowes, auditors.

St. Mary's Roman Catholic church and school at Highland Park was damaged to the extent of $25,000 by a fire last week and threatened to raze the $55,000 structure. The church is located in Deerfield avenue between Green Bay road and McGovern street. It is regarded as a singular coincidence that it was just eight years ago today that the original church was destroyed by fire. That was in 1916. The church was rebuilt and is one of the finest on the north shore.

A silver fox farm is soon to be established on the Davis farm, located between the Delevan hotel and the village of Fontana, Wis. It is said that a silver fox can be fed commercially for from $15 to $30 per year.

A delegation of influential citizens of Elgin made a trip to Springfield last week in the interest of route 22, from the end of the present paving near Algonquin extended to connect with route 19, at a point between Crystal Lake and Cary. Elgin citizens are particularly anxious that this stretch be included in an early letting so that work on same may start early this spring.

County Treasurer Ira Pearsall, announced Friday that in all probability the treasurer's office will be ready to receive tax money by the latter part of next week. The force is working on the tax books at present and while many people have called to pay their taxes, the money cannot be accepted until all the books are ready. Payment of taxes will be made in the county treasurer's office in the south side of the new addition to the court house, first floor.

There is some talk of organizing a baseball team at Woodstock this year. The county seat city was without a club last year and the fans are already asking that a team be formed there.

At the last regular meeting of the city council at Crystal Lake the board unanimously passed a resolution authorizing the board of local improvements to proceed with the project of paving certain streets of that city. While there is some opposition to the street paving program as outlined, it is not believed that the objections are strong enough to slay the proposed improvements.

Big strides are being made in Wisconsin in the formation of a cooperative marketing company. The new company will form under the Sapiro plan and contracts are being signed up for a period of five years.

The first annual Father and Son banquet was held Friday evening under the auspices of the Agricultural Club of the Antioch Township high school. Sixty-five fathers and sons were out to enjoy the evening.

The banquet was prepared and served by the girls of the home economic department. The Chain-O'-Lakes menu consisting of local farm products, was very appetizing. Much credit is due to the girls and their instructor, Miss D. Tiffany.

Prof. Carl Colvin of the state department at Springfield was the main speaker of the evening. He discussed the project method of teaching agriculture and pictured the dignity of labor as something that puts happiness into life. The Actor—Yes, sir, some one named a base, cowardly egg at me.

The Other—And what kind of an egg is that?

The Actor—A base, cowardly egg, sir? A base, cowardly egg is one that hits you—and then runs.

It took Mr. Fred J. Witt of Chicago, a prominent resorter at Channel lake, to start something over the recent order of the Soo line to issue only personal commutation tickets.

Antioch's Commercial association having passed into oblivion over a year ago did not rise out of this calamity, nor did the removal of the 6:59 train in the morning seem to disturb the usual winter sleaze, but thanks to Mr. Witt, there has been some progress made against the ruling issued by the Soo Line.

But single handed Mr. Witt has not been able to accomplish all that could be wished for in service from the local transportation system. It is a matter that will demand concerted action from all sources. There are many more prominent men who are favorable to this section whose word would go a long way to help right matters for a reasonable service from the Soo Line.

Mr. Witt's efforts are certainly to be greatly appreciated. The News is very thankful for his considerate information as to his progress with the officials of the Soo Line and take great pleasure in publishing the entire file on the subject.

Gen. Pass. Agent, Soo Line Ry., 140 S. Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir:

We hereby voice our protest over the elimination of ten and twenty-five ride bearer tickets which have been discontinued.

Was informed that this was done through ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Investigation however, discloses the fact that other roads out of Chicago have not eliminated lesser tickets and, therefore, fail to understand why the Soo Line should take this initiative step. However, this policy of yours causes no immediate surprise, as it is in line with a great many other actions done and taken against the general detriment of shippers and the public patronizing your road.

As to the Illinois Fuel & Mining Company, who load and ship considerable fuelwood, sawdust, etc., from Gresham, Shawano, White Lake, Wis. and other competing points, it will be our policy to reciprocate in diverting all this business via Northwestern and St. Paul to Chicago and perhaps with the aid of other shippers, you may be brought to realize that the general public certainly has some rights relative to the elimination of certain privileges.

Yours truly,
Illinois Fuel & Mining Co.

Mr. Fred J. Witt,
Illinois Fuel & Mining Company,
39 So. La Salle st., Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir:

By reference of our Chicago representative, Mr. Sneed, I have your letter of Feb. 8th voicing a protest against our action in changing ten and twenty-five ride commutation tickets effective February 1st.

At the outset, permit me to say that your letter is somewhat of a surprise and it occurs to me that it must have been resulted from a misunderstanding of the circumstances. We have not withdrawn commutation fares nor in any way changed the rates therefore. We have merely changed the honoring arrangements, requiring that such tickets be good only for transportation of the individual purchaser instead of "bearer."

In explanation of our action I will say it was not to comply with any order of the Interstate Commerce Commission or the Illinois Public Utilities Commission but was prompted by a desire to correct or overcome an evil which has been practiced by the use of these "bearer" tickets for some years.

It is a well known fact in the Chicago Suburban district that these commutation tickets have been subjected to manipulation by many unscrupulous persons to defeat our local passenger rates for an occasional trip to and from Chicago by the sale or purchase of coupons from these bearer tickets. This manipulation was increasing to such an extent that practically all of our local travel in

SPEAKS HERE NEXT WEDNESDAY

Rev. McWhorter

Next Wednesday evening, at seven o'clock, the Reverend Gardner A. McWhorter of the Chicago City Missions staff will preach at St. Ignatius' church, at the regular mid-week Lenten service. It will be an occasion for the friends of Father McWhorter, who was formerly priest-in-charge of St. Ignatius' to greet him and hear about his work in the various institutions of the church in Chicago. To Prohibit Heavy Trucks During Thaw

A protection to the condition of the unpaved roads in Lake county during the thawing season was discussed at a recent meeting of all the highway officials at the Chamber of Commerce rooms in Waukegan, when they put a weight embargo on all but the paved state highways for the next 30 days. If the frost is not out of the ground and the roads dried up, the embargo will be continued for another 30 days.

During the spring of the year the wear and tear on unpaved roads is greater than at any other time and when heavy trucks travel over the roads while they are soft, the damage done the roads costs hundreds of dollars to repair.

At the meeting Wednesday it was voted to limit the weight of all truck loads traveling over the unpaved roads and a heavy fine has been fixed to be charged against all violators. A truck with hard rubber tires must not weigh more, including the load, than 3,000 pounds and trucks with pneumatic tires, including load weight, must not weigh more than 10,000 lbs. This is a very reasonable limit as other counties in this vicinity have cut the weight limit to 6,000 pounds regardless of kind of tires used.

The township highway commissioners have been given power to make arrests and with the sheriff's deputies working in the county, it will be very difficult for violators to get by without arrest. Violators will be forced to pay a heavy fine which will be used to repair the damage done the unpaved roads by the heavy trucks.

Just as soon as the frost is out of the ground and the roads have dried up and are again hard and solid, the embargo will be removed and trucking will be resumed as during the summer months.

The embargo plan for early spring was tried out last year and proved very successful in that the unpaved roads were in much better condition last summer than they have been for many years previous.

REGNER CLUB TO PLAY ANTIOCH ON TUESDAY

The Regner A. C. basketball team of Kenosha will play at the Antioch High School gym on Tuesday evening March 25.

These two teams have played two games, Antioch winning the first 32-30, and the Regner winning the second game 14-11. There will be a preliminary game at 7:30, the Boy Scouts playing.

Ernst's Book Store of Kenosha will play here Saturday, March 22.

Milk Price Is $2.55 for Next Six Months

The price of milk for the next six months was settled on Friday at 2:55. The milk board held out for 2.60 and the dealers 2.50, but finally compromised at 2.55.

The dealers laid great stress on the competition of cheaper milk coming in from the north and the surplus milk they would have to take care of.

Milk is now 25 cents a hundred less than around the first of the year. This means the farmer is to get 25 cents a hundred less at the best period of the year than what he received at the flush period.

Despite the reduction to the farmer the retailer still maintains the 14-cents a quart price in Chicago-making a split now about 60 percent to the dealer and 40 per cent to the farmer.

The big dealers have promised to take care of all the milk in the district. Charles Sibley of Antioch, Judge Pedan of Libertyville and Mr. Umberstark of Prairie View were selected to take of the farmers without a market for their milk.

The new separator for the factory at Antioch is expected to be installed the latter part of the week. With this additional equipment the local plant expects to be able to take care of all the former patrons here.

The Bureau of Markets and the other rural state departments have been approached to help in the organization work. The new company will form under the Sapiro plan and contracts are being signed up for a period of five years.

High School Vaudeville on Friday Night

The high school vaudeville to be given Friday night, under direction of Miss Esther Olson, with the assistance of Miss Edith Ewen as vocal director and Mr. Pollock as orchestra director, is being looked forward to with great anticipation.

The participants have been working hard to make this the premier event of the season for the high school, and the rumors omitted from south of town say their is going to be some real acts displayed.

Emmet Webb, Vida Palmer and Bernadine Walsh will appear in a light sketch entitled "The Maker of Dreams."

A "Bubble Dance" which contain Dorothy Hawkins, Marie Rothers, Georgia Bacon, Glenna Roberts, Grace Jack, Irene Sheehan and Augusta Hucker; Antioch Township's popular "ag" teacher will show you something in the line of "Black Magic and Mabel Van Deusen, Albert Herman and Ardis Grimm will display their talents in a sketch entitled "Suppressed Desires."

L. R. Watson (alias Al. Johnson II.) and young Richard Cass are teamed up in a con comedy sketch that should either make you laugh, w or get up and go out. "Last Night on the Back Porch" as a song revue sounds to good to miss with Edith Edgar, Marie Rothers, Georgia Bacon, and Mabel Van Deusen as the revue.

"We Are Merry Robbers" with Richard Cass and Emmett Webb as the robbers ought to be good, and the "Plantation Melodies," with Clara Sorensen, Augusta Hucker, Irene Sheehan, Mary Herman, Ethel Hahn, Glenna Roberts, Hilma Rosling and Genevieve Sanborn sounds promising.

Miss Marie Rothers will interpret "The Song of the Clock, followed by "A Bit o' Scotch" by (Harry Lauder) L. O. Bright, erstwhile principal (here's a good chance to tickle his knees girls).

"Crimoline Days" with Miss Mabel Van Deusen assisted by a chorus comprised by Edith Edgar, Elma Cannon, Georgia Bacon and Vida Palmer will wind up the evening's entertainment.

If we are not mistaken it looks as if you might get your money's worth.

Runyard With- draws From Race for State Atty.

Attorney Eugene M. Runyard of Waukegan, the first candidate to file for state's attorney, admitted Tuesday afternoon that he has withdrawn from the race and will instruct the county clerk to keep his name from the ballot. Mr. Runyard's reason for withdrawing is his disinclination to get into a six-cornered fight for the office.

When Mr. Runyard consented to make the race for state's attorney he was assured that he would be the sole opponent of A. V. Smith, the incumbent. Since that time four other candidates have entered the field.

MCHENRY WOMEN ORGANIZE FOR SMALL

The women of McHenry county are planning to organize in behalf of the candidacy for re-election of Governor Len Small, according to the latest information. For several weeks prominent women of the county have been expressing a desire to assist in the governor's re-election and this desire has taken the form of organizing a county wide club for that purpose.

"The men organize, go to political meetings and generally take a sincere interest in the election of their favorite candidates," Mrs. C. M. Kennedy told a representative of the Sentinel, "and I don't see why the women should not be just as anxious to thoroughly inform themselves as the men."

The club which is now being formed is for the women voters of the county. Its initial officers are: Mrs. Charles M. Kennedy, president; Mrs. Frank J. Green, secretary; Miss Carrie Rushon, treasurer; Mrs. David T. Smiley, Harvard, and Mrs. L. D. Lawell, Crystal Lake, vice president.

Asks for Re-election on His Record

To Our Friends and Constituents:

We, as members of the Lake County Bar and as citizens, wish to endorse the candidacy of Col. A. V. Smith for re-nomination and re-election as State's Attorney. During his term of office he has conducted the business of the County in a highly efficient manner, giving all of his time to its attention. It is our feeling that in performing his duties he has tried to represent the best citizenship and thought in our community. His re-nomination and re-election means that there will be a continuance for four more years of a vigorous policy of fair and impartial enforcements of the law.

THROUGH winter's raging storms the electric transmission lines of this Company must be maintained in working order

At such times construction crews and linemen are on the job continuously, battling the elements to keep the lines open and service to customers uninterrupted.

It is this spirit of service which means so much in an organization, where the activities of all employees are dedicated to the public.

Adequate and dependable electric service is a strong community asset.

The Apostle's Creed

"From thence he shall come to judge the quick and the dead."

I would advise you not to read this article. It will be hard work. It deals with the reason for the above phrase of the creed. It explains what that phrase means; and perhaps you would prefer to repeat the phrase without understanding what it means.

We must look at three historical movements before we can understand these words of the creed. First, the Prophetic movement, then the Priestly movement, which followed the prophetic, and thirdly, the Apocalyptic movement which came last as a revulsion from the priestly, or legalistic movement.

The prophets were preachers who preached to their own day, the gospel of righteousness, and of a God who would, in spite of all obstacles, bring His kingdom upon the earth. They saw their own hopes thwarted, but they never gave up hopes that in God's good time His will would be done on Earth. In the eighth, seventh, and sixth centuries the great prophetic preached. The exile came in 586 B. C. and during that time and after, the priestly code and the priestly order came to the front, and the legalistic order came to take the place of the prophetic. In fact, the priests, got such a strong foothold that they would not admit that another prophet could or would ever come again. As Jesus told the Jews, they had persecuted the prophets, always. Most of the persecutions had been since the Exile, because the priestly party would not run any risk of having a prophet interfere with their position of leadership. The priestly or legalistic position was based on the keeping of the law. Keep the law and that was all. Only thru the law could you find God. After a while this got too tame for lots of the people and they struggled for a better way. They gradually lost the prophets hope of an eventual coming of God's kingdom on earth, but that seemed to make God a liar; so to justify God for all of His promises, they came to the conclusion that if His kingdom could not come here, it would come hereafter, and thus the idea and faith in a Heaven came into existence not much more than three hundred years before Jesus. At first it was the happy thought that grew out of the despair for this world. This new movement was called Apocalypticism. It is largely a movement of despair. The earth is so bad, God will destroy it and all the sinners, and take the good people, dead and alive up to heaven with Him. This movement had its own literature, in fact, it grew mainly by the aid of its literature, which had its own characteristics. The prophetes had been spoken, and later written to preserve a record of them; but this Apocalyptic literature was written to be read. To avoid the wrath of the priestly party which would not admit any new prophets, the writers had to circulate these writings under assumed names. The book of Daniel was the first one of these apocalyptic books of which we have a record. It was written about 180 B. C. to strengthen the faith and loyalty of the Jews in the fierce persecutions of Antiochus Epiphanes, under whose domination Palestine then was, who was trying to blot out the entire Hebrew religion. It served its purpose. The Jews not only stood, but under the Maccabees won their religious freedom. Later writers adopted this style, and this method of attaching the name of some old-time worthy to their writings so as to dodge the ban, and get them read. We have the "Assumption of Moses," the "Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs," The Psalms of Solomon, and many others, in which the writers put really prophetic teachings for their people to fit their definite historical situation. I call the writers prophets because of their purpose of calling the people closer to God. Noble men they were, and if they practised this little literary device, it was for their times a necessity, if their messages were to get to the people. The Apocalypses of John, not only belongs to this class, but has borrowed the name of the beloved apostle to give it prestige. This literature all has a common lot of ideas. None of the features of the Apocalypses of John, commonly called, though wrongly, Revelation, are original. The setting or use he makes of them is all that is all that is original. All of the features are common to most of the Apocalypses. These common features are The Physical Heaven, right above Palestine, God or Jesus coming down from heaven, from straight up above Jerusalem, using the angels to help gather the faithful, the bloody destruction of sinners, and the final destruction of the world-all done up in the most crass, literal, material way. The Apocalypses of John was written during the age of the most fierce persecutions of the early Christians by Rome. The Intertestamental Apocalypses were written during periods of political crisis. When we find any apocalypses we look for the dark period which brought it forth.

In Mark 13:3ff; Matthew 24; 3ff; and Luke 21:35ff; you will find almost all of the apocalyptic utterances purporting to come from Jesus. The one in Mark was written earliest, the one in Matthew based on Mark, is only a bit more lurid, and the one in Luke is much like the others, but all are based on Mark. Now, remember that Mark was written about A. D. 63, and that the final struggle between Palestine and Rome was between 66 and 70 A. D. And remember that Matthew and Luke were written after 70 A. D. and it will not be so hard to read the words of Prof. Muirhead in Vol. I of Hastings' "Dictionary of Christ and the Gospels"—"On the whole—it is most probable that the evangelists incorporated in their texts, a Jewish-Christian Apocalypse which gave the substance of our Lord's teaching in a form adapted to the case of the Christians at Jerusalem at the time of the Jewish-Roman war 66-70 A. D." These words and this attitude toward the world and men is unlike the rest of the words of Jesus. If Jesus had these ideas, he was mistaken, for these things did

EASE IS THE DOMINANT STYLE NOTE

There has never been a time when men's clothes were more sensible than they are for spring and summer 1924; or better looking.

These facts are worth telling and they're worth reading. The new styles fit easily and hang informally. They're not loose or baggy; they have a little more room than clothes of previous seasons.

The whole idea is relaxation; the coats look relaxed—not snug or stiff; they feel relaxed; the trousers are wider and more comfortable.

Men look better in such clothes because they seem to be so completely at ease and so unconscious of their clothes.

The clothes wear better because there isn't so much strain on them—they drape over the figure; they don't hug it as previous styles have.

At the left is shown an easy-fitting three-button type which is the correct thing anywhere. At the right is the more extreme straight, hanging style that is a favorite with the men in the more exclusive colleges.

not happen soon as predicted. I would rather say or think that he did not think such things. But you may excuse him on the ground that he was just naturally adopting the thought models of his day. However, whether or not Jesus said these things in these chapters indicated, I do not believe them. If Jesus came straight down in the second coming, it would be at Jerusalem, so we could not see him here. Remember that we have a round world. God is a spirit; not a physical body, and does not need angels to run errands for Him. I am an optimist, and with the prophets, I believe that God's purposes for this earth have not gone entirely awry. I believe in a second coming of Jesus—his coming in the lives of God's children, but I do not believe those crude, pessimistic, materialistic conceptions of the Premillennialists, who are now threatening to disrupt Christianity over their beliefs. It is because I understand where this phrase of the creed came from that I repudiate it, with all of its bloody, horrible, pessimistic brood of ideas born of despair. I can not admit that it expresses the highest of my faith in God or man, can you?

Find Man Hanged at Paddock Lake

The body of a man, believed to be Steve Werner, a farm hand, who spent a night at the North Chicago jail in January and is believed to have been a guest at the Waukegan battle for one night, was found hanging from a ladder near the hay loft of an unused barn at Paddock Lake, Wis., Wednesday of last week according to word received by the Waukegan police.

Edward E. Tewes, manager of the Waukegan Ice company reported to the police that the barn in which the body was found was close to that owned by the local Ice concern. He is of the belief that Werner took his life a night or so after he had applied for a job at the Waukegan Ice company camp at the Wisconsin lake and was turned down.

The body, which dangled from the ladder by a few strands of binder twine, was frozen, and it is believed that it had been hanging there for at least three weeks. Truman T. Park, county coroner, took charge immediately. There is no doubt, he said, but what the man committed suicide.

Early reports which trickled into Kenosha were to the effect that a body had been found hanging from a tree. Investigation disproved this report.

Werner, it seems, has been a mysterious figure in the western part of Kenosha county ever since he first appeared there 18 months ago. Just where he came from or who he was has never been definitely determined. His history here opened a year ago last fall when he was seen to get off from a train carrying a battered suitcase.

Suspicion was aroused by his peculiar action and later the same day Peter Olsen, town constable, ordered the man to move out of town. Two days later he appeared at the Olsen farm where he worked for a day and a half. After this he again disappeared and was next seen last spring when he obtained work from Peter Meyers, a farmer living a mile north of Bristol. Later he worked for C. L. Olsen and then again disappeared. He was last seen in one of the stores at Salem about a month ago.

Investigation of his record has revealed the meager facts that he has a sister living in Toledo, and a brother in Chicago. The men for whom he worked stated that he seemed to resent questions as to his past or his family history.

A search of the dead man's clothes failed to produce any letters or papers through which he is identification could be definitely established. Nor were there any marks in his clothes to show where they were purchased. In his pocket, however, there was a purse containing $8.75. This money is being held by the coroner.

His description is 45 years old, bright blue eyes, dark curly hair slightly bald, with light sandy eyebrows and moustache. He was five feet five inches in height and weighed about 140 pounds.

Cold weather in the Gulf coast regions, according to a report received by the United States department of agriculture, has apparently resulted in high mortality among some of the semitropical forms of truck crop insects, such as the belted cucumber beetle, the Australian tomato weevil, and the sweet-potato weevil.

A REAL ONE

Bystander—"I observe that you treat that gentleman very respectfully."

Bystander—"Early settler? Why, he's not more than forty years of age."

Carl Pfanstiehl Tells of New Radio Theory

Carl Pfanstiehl, president and engineer of the Pfanstiehl Radio Service company, delivered a lecture recently at Highland Park in the Elm-Place school auditorium on "The New Theory of Radio."

Mr. Pfanstiehl's address dealt with the "New Theory of Radio." He began with a brief review of molecular theory of matter giving in explanations of the very small size of these particles. For instance, if all the molecules in a thimbleful of air were converted to oranges, the fruit would be sufficient to cover the entire United States with a layer of 1000 feet deep, and yet a molecule is like a mountain compared with the mills of which atoms themselves are made. He explained the latest accepted theory as to how all the atoms are built up of protons and electrons, positive and negative electricity, from which the deduction is that all matter is some form of electricity.

The speaker went on to say that light, heat, X-ray and Radio waves or rays are forms of the same thing, namely, Radiant Energy. Mr. Pfanstiehl agrees with the Einstein group of physicists that Radiant Energy is not a wave motion in the "ether." In fact he says there is no such thing as "ether."

According to the speaker, Radiant Energy consists of little particles of matter, probably infinitely smaller than the electrons. These particles of "something" are shot off in all directions and actually travel at the speed of light of 186,000 miles a second. These little "bullets" are shaken loose from the electrons inside of the atom under certain conditions.

For instance, when a substance is heated quite hot, some of the electrons in a few of the atoms are caused to send out these little particles of energy at the rate or frequency of 750 million millions to 400 million millions per second, and when these particles strike the eye, we will see and are conscious of color and light. In other words, our eyes act as receivers for this form of "Energy." When an electric current is caused to surge back and forth in an electric circuit at the rate of 3 million to 20,000 surges or cycles per second, the same kind of little particles of energy are shot off into space at the same rate of frequency as the current surges back and forth in the circuit. It is these particles of energy that are thrown into space that constitutes what is commonly called and thought of as a "radio wave."

It would seem therefore, to Mr. Pfanstiehl, that light may be thought of as visible Radio and Radio as invisible light. When a stream of radiant energy or particles strike a receiving antenna, it produces a very weak electric current in the antenna which is turned into sound waves or air waves in the receiving set.

Mr. Pfanstiehl stated that this theory of Radio is probably much nearer the truth than old "ether" wave system and that the people starting out with this conception would probably have much less to forget or unlearn in the near future when more is known about this mysterious phenomenon.

Experiments are being conducted in various Universities which seem to indicate a possibility of explaining a direct communication between the minds on the basis of these little particles constituting Radiant Energy.

The development along this line is very startling and very rapid and further knowledge of the nature of these particles that are shot into space may explain the mechanism of direct communication and telepathy between two minds in the near future. It will be through these channels and these principles Mr. Pfanstiehl believes, that will come in contact with the wireless transmission of vision.

As the lecture which Mr. Pfanstiehl delivered was quite hard to understand in mere words, he illustrated with charts and several experiments. Among one of the experiments, he used a flashlight for the radio transmitter and caused a bell to ring across the room when the flashlight was directed on the Radio receiver connected with it. Also, an electric light globe was lighted by the radio across the platform from the transmitter on one side of the platform.

Lake Resorter Takes Issue With Soo Line

The territory between Chicago and Waukegan, it developed, was being handled largely on these bearer tickets. We found that store keepers were in many cases selling such coupons at a price materially lower than the regular fare but higher than the per-mile rate represented by coupons for a profit to themselves and to the detriment of the railroad as we were clearly entitled for the transportation of that class of travel to the normal fare prescribed by our lawfully filed tariffs. At one town on our line, we found that even the Post Master was selling commutation coupons in this manner. At another point, investigation disclosed that one of our own employees was guilty of the same manipulation.

Accordingly, to stamp out this dangerous and illegal abuse of the "bearer" privilege, we decided to replace the "bearer" form of ticket with an "individual" ten and twenty-five ride ticket and we still feel that our action was entirely justified, especially since it involved no change in the per-mile rates so far as the bona fide commuter was concerned.

These commutation fares were originally established primarily to accommodate and encourage bona fide suburban travel and then extended to Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin in order to benefit the frequent traveler to and from Chicago. The rates are still available to any individual who is making ten trips (or five round trips) between Chicago and our Illinois stations. I believe you will agree that the person who is not traveling to the extent of ten trips within a year could hardly be considered a commuter or entitled to a commutation rate.

May I at this time point out that in contrast to the basic fare of 3.5 cent per mile prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission as the fare which should obtain for transportation passengers generally the commutation rates in question, are as low as 1 cent per mile and do not in any case exceed 1.8 cent per mile.

It was expected that our action would provoke some ill feeling among the class of people whose activities were directly responsible for the change. We did not, however, anticipate any protest from bona fide commuters in view of the reasons given as justifying our action, which are apparently quite well known, and I might say that yours is the first criticism we have received. I believe, however, that you were laboring under a slight misapprehension, possibly mistaking our action as a complete withdrawal of commutation fares.

However, with this explanation, I feel sure that you will appreciate the reasonableness of our position in this matter and I sincerely hope for a continuance of the friendly relations which have existed between our respective companies.

Yours truly,

H. N. LEWIS,
General Passenger Agent

Mr. H. N. Lewis, Gen. Pass. Agt.
Soo Line, Minneapolis, Minn.
Dear Sir:

Replying to your favor of Feb. 13, your file T60, beg to state that the reasons stated for discontinuing bearer tickets does not at all justify the action taken. The writer, like other business men who have summer homes in the neighborhood of Antioch, Illinois, which in a measure were purchased on account of reasonable rates of transportation, etc., will say that he still cannot understand why one road should take this step when other roads like the Northwestern, St. Paul, Burlington, Illinois Central roads you will have to admit are all ably managed and all are making money have not discontinued this privilege. There is nothing to show that these roads are not imposed to the same conditions that the Soo Line was imposed upon.

It seems to the writer that you are not aware of the fact that the automobile these days is not only playing an important role in transportation, but will in the future, if the roads are not more careful in giving the public a fair deal, play a considerable more important role. There was considerable talk at Antioch last year, owing to the "poor transportation" that the business men were compelled to put up with the morning service, trains not coming in on time, of running a bus line to Waukegan to connect with the North Shore Electric at practically the same rate as you bearer tickets all for today.

What hurts the writer most is the fact that at different times during the season, he has in the neighborhood of 10 to 20, twenty-five people that spend day or more in Antioch and it simply will mean that they will have to hire an automobile to go to and from Oak Park to Antioch.

Obituary

Mrs. Emory Newell died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Otto Warren, in the town of York, on Friday, March 7, 1924. About three years ago she was stricken with paralysis, and since that time has been practically an invalid, although able to enjoy life in a measure most of the time.

Adella Angeles Stago was born at Collins Center, Erie county, New York, May 26, 1831. At the age of 15 she was married to Emory Newell. About sixteen years later the family moved to Dundee, Ill., which was their home for seventeen years. At most nine years was spent in Trevor, Wis., and in 1911 the family came to Neillsville, which has been her home ever since. With her husband they lived with their daughter, Mrs. Warren.

Mrs. Warren was in many ways a very remarkable woman. Although she did not have in early life the educational advantages open to young people now she secured an education that opened up to her the highways of literature and made her in every way a very intelligent person. Her life was one of work for although she managed the duties of home and family in an early age she never allowed her energies entirely to the small circle of home, but always seemed to find time to take an active part in helping all about her.

She had a spontaneous goodness of heart that all who came in contact with her recognized at once and which made them feel free to come to her for help in time of need and for sympathy in sorrow. No one was too old or too young to be outside the radius of her sympathies. There was nothing affected or artificial in this; it was simple and spontaneous. She was deeply religious and was always identified with church work and with the great reformatory activities of her age. With all of her wide-spread helpfulness she was still practical in her home, ministering always to the comforts of the family and even finding time to contribute articles to the household magazine. She had a rare gift of music and in earlier years had a wonderful voice.

Although only a young girl at Civil war times, she was taken from place to place to sing patriotic songs to stimulate enlistment and afterward her voice was used in choir work and in bringing hope and comfort to the sick and dying. Here was a work well done; she was a sheaf full ripe for the harvest. Too all who knew her she has left a legacy of pleasant memories. Any life so full, so generous, so earnest and yet so seasoned with the saving grace of humor, was surely a successful life.

She leaves her aged husband, one son, Daniel, of Elgin, Ill., and three daughters, Mrs. Jesse Warner and Mrs. Zada Warren of Neillsville, and Mrs. Carolyn Girard of Kenosha, Wis. She is survived also by a brother in New York, seven grandsons and one granddaughter. One daughter, Mrs. Myra Rover, died in California in 1911. Owing to the poor health of Mr. Newell the funeral was held at the Warren home Sunday, March 9, with interment in Neillsville cemetery.

The Custard Cup

COPYRIGHT BY GEORGE H. DORAN COMPANY

The three children trooped after her prodigal with entertaining comment, delighted with the graciousness of her response. After she had stepped into the car, they stood watching, hand in hand.

"Remember us to your daughters, won't you?" beamed Lettie, in a charming ecstasy of politeness.

"Yes, thank you," returned Mrs. Weatherston; not to be outdone. In the moment before the car started, she looked again at the three children, in their made-over versions of clothing that had come out of her household. She was unwittingly responsible for the appearance which these three eager miles of humanity presented to their little world.

"May the Lord forgive me," she thought, "for what I have done to the innocent!"

In the Custard Cup the afternoon continued to be unusual. To her intense delight, Lettie was invited to have supper with Mrs. Sanders—invited with that spontaneous informality that is dear to the heart of every youngster. The rest of the family were at home, lingering around the table, when an emergency call came from Mrs. Enslow's. The baby had met with an accident, painfully connected with the hot stove.

Crink was dispatched to the drug store for soothing remedies. Mrs. Penfield, agitated out of observance of her customary after-supper regime, was inveigled into permitting Thad to hunt up his chum, Timmy Catterbox. She left the table as it stood and hurried to Mrs. Enslow's.

Half an hour later, when the baby was relieved, Mrs. Penfield went back to her interrupted routine. She switched on the light and began clearing the table—stopped in the act of lifting a plate. Her eyes had fallen on a chair overturned on the floor of the living room. A slight thing, but it had happened while she had been gone. While all the family had been gone!

Her heart stood still as she thought of the money which she had failed to deposit that afternoon. More than two hundred dollars! It had totally slipped her mind in the excitement of the Enslow catastrophe. She dreaded to look in the suitcase. Seconds passed while she stared at the overturned chair, paralyzed by dread. At last she nerved herself to investigate. The front door was still locked; but the back door had been left open, that the children might enter when they returned.

She went into the bedroom. The suitcase was on the floor. The rickety old fasteners were undone.

The envelope of bills was gone. So was Cussie Bosley's package.

Mrs. Penfield sank back on the floor by the suitcase, faint and sick. Her blood seemed to have stopped. The room whirled. She was hanging over a chasm—black ruin.

Crink came in.

"Where's Thad, Penzie? Ain't he here?"

"Thad!" repeated Mrs. Penfield, still in a daze.

"Yea, he's Timmy was playing in the Catterbox back yard, and Thad right off. Time he went to bed, anyhow. It's most dark."

They went through the house, looking in bunks on the chance that Thad might be hiding, moving boxes behind which no one could be concealed. They searched to the back yard, in the driveway. No Thad!

Mrs. Penfield was alarmed.

"Crink, we must find him. Must!"

"Crack, yea," cried Crink. "We couldn't live 'thout Thad."

They separated, each taking a side of the driveway and ringing doorbells in rotation. "Some one was at home in every flat—except the Bosleys, where the windows were dark and the evening paper was still on the steps. But no one had seen Thad since he had left Timmy Catterbox."

They went up and down the sidewalk outside The Custard Cup, through all the yards once more, through Number 47.

Lettie hounded in. She had known that Crink had rung Mrs. Sanders' bell, looking for Thad, but it had taken a few minutes for this information to turn into anxiety in her mind.

"Have they found him?" she demanded.

The silence answered her. They had all loved Thad, but no one had realized how large a place he held.

Mrs. Penfield stood in the middle of the room, dazed, unable to see the next move to make. Her face was chalky white. Her brown eyes looked black; they burned with a fierce fire. She had totally forgotten the loss of the money. She had not even mentioned it to the children. What was money compared with Thad, the baby that she had loved as if it had been hers by blood?

Lettie had never seen her idealized Penzie look like that, had never seen her withdrawn from the ways of speech. A mighty impulse surged up in the child to make her Penzie happy again; and it was as if the rising tide of that impulse lifted a recollection, fallen in one corner of her brain, and bore it to the surface. Her mind was illumined with conviction.

"I'll get him, Penzie; I'll get him," she screamed, waving her arm wildly and dashing toward the door.

Mrs. Penfield sprang forward and caught the child by the shoulder. "You stay right here, Lettie. Ain't no use starting off at random. I'm going to Mrs. Catterbox's to telephone the police, and—"

"Leggo!" cried Lettie, working her lean shoulder manly in the effort to free herself. "Leggo! I'll get him."

"Lettie—"

"Leggo! I gotta get him."

The frail cotton tore under Mrs. Penfield's grasp. Lettie had wrenched herself loose.

"Don't you worry, Penzie, darling," she shrieked, as she darted toward the door. "I know where he is. I'll get him; I'll get him."

CHAPTER XX

Lettie on the Firing Line.

Lettie's plan was definite, but only a child would have formed it. Her suspicions were red-hot, but only a child of ten-second impulsiveness would have acted upon them. There was a great deal of inflammable material in her nature, and no one could tell what chance spark might set it off. The evidence that had recurred to her, under the stress of Mrs. Penfield's suffering, was slight, even unreliable, but her imagination had invested it with integrity.

From Mrs. Sanders' living-room window she had caught the merest glimpse of a man with a child in his arms, hurrying out of The Custard Cup. Looking from a lighted room into the deepening twilight, she had seen neither clearly and had not thought of recognizing the man or the child. But when she had found that Thad was missing, she had jumped to the congenial conclusion that she had seen Frank Bosley carrying Thad away. Why Frank Bosley? Chiefly because Lettie disliked him, distrusted him, and because in build he was not unlike the man she had seen. The fact that Frank Bosley could have no possible interest in kidnapping a Custard Cup child, did not occur to disturb her conviction. True to the impulsiveness which was the keynote of her nature, she had jumped to a conclusion.

It was several blocks to the Everidge street house, but Lettie covered them rapidly. There was no light in any window, but she rang the bell. "I'll begin decent," she thought to herself. She was sure that queer people came here, and somehow she didn't expect them to do anything so mild as to respond to a bell. Giving them the chance, was her way of discharging her formal duty.

There was no answer. Lettie set her teeth and proceeded to business.

"Thad's in there," she thought steadily, "and I'm going to have him."

Quietly she circled the two-story house. It had a high basement. There was a basement window toward the vacant lot, but it was fastened. Immediately she reflected that if she got into the basement, she would probably want to get upstairs and might find herself locked away from the main floor. She knew that the key was not likely to be on the basement side. The windows on the first floor were all closed—except one on the other side from the vacant lot, probably the bathroom window. That was raised a few inches. It was very narrow, but so was Lettie. Mentally she pounced on that window.

She called upon her wide experience in prowling to help her. In the back yard she found an old box; in other back yards she found other boxes. She borrowed four of different sizes, and with every intention of returning them. No one knew better than Lettie how important a piece of personal property an old wooden box may be; and in spite of her acquisitive tendencies, she had a rigid respect for prior claims.

She placed the boxes on end, by way of making them reach. Then through acquired agility and with the help of nails that had once fastened a vine to the wall, she climbed within range of the ledge, pushed up the window softly, squeezed her thin body through, swung downward with her wily hands grasping the sill, and touched her feet to the floor.

She was inside. With the exuberance of ignorance, she felt that her quest was nearly accomplished. She stretched out her hands till she discovered the door; then went through—into inky blackness. She groped along the wall, tried a door, found it locked; tried another, found it also locked; tried a third. The knob yielded. She turned it carefully and looked into a room in which a gas jet burned. A woman was sitting by a table—a rich woman. She was counting her money and putting the green bills into different piles. There was wrapping paper on the table, a ball of cord, a stick of red wax.

There was no child in the room. Having glanced around to make sure, Lettie tried to withdraw quietly, but the doorknob slipped in her hand. It clicked sharply. The woman turned with a violent start, sprang up.

"What are you doing here?" she demanded.

Lettie shivered at the sound of her voice. It was low but harsh, cold, as different as possible from Penzie's—like voices she had been accustomed to in those lean years before she came into The Custard Cup. With a jerk the woman had covered her money with one of the papers. She turned on Lettie with eyes that glittered, threatened. Her face had a shut look.

"I want to see Mr. Bosley," Lettie stammered.

"The woman gazed at her coldly.

"Ain't nobody here by that name."

"He comes here."

"He don't, neither."

"Yes, he does," insisted Lettie desperately. "I've seen him."

"You ain't, neither," retorted the woman with vehemence. She came forward. "You get out—"

She broke off in the midst of her intensity and glanced back at the table, as if considering how much the unwelcome visitor had seen. "How'd you get in?"

"Through the window. I wouldn't ha' done it if you'd answered the bell."

"What did you come for?"

"My little brother. Please let me have him—quick."

The woman's brows drew together in a horrible scowl. "There ain't nobody here but me. I'm alone—and I been alone all the time. Now, what do you mean, you little devil?"

She made a dive at Lettie; then paused. It was evident that she could not make up her mind what to do with the intruder. Finally she gripped the child's shoulder, whirled her about, and forced her into a chair. "You sit there," she hissed. "Don't you move. You're a little. We'll have you put in a 'y-lum."

Lettie glared steadily back at her. The grip on her thin shoulder had convinced her that physical resistance was inadvisable, but she was serene in the knowledge that she was not a lunatic.

"I want my little brother," she repeated, with diplomatic calm.

A tide of color surged into the woman's face. She looked as if she were strangling. "Ain't nobody here," she snapped.

A terrible fear clutched Lettie's heart. What if Thad really were not here? She had been so blindly certain of his presence that she had not faced the opposite possibility.

"Please—"

"Shut up."

The woman sat down across from Lettie. They glared savagely at each other. The shades were drawn down below the window-sills, so that not a ray of light could penetrate outside.

No one would dream that a little girl was a prisoner in this house, dark, deserted, for all that a passer-by could tell. The room was close and fearfully silent. The gas sputtered up now and then with an angry sizzling. Lettie's frightened glance traveled around the bare room, seeking for some means of outwitting the woman before her. Nothing occurred to her.

Suddenly she heard a sound that was like a faint moan. It seemed to come from a distance. She heard it again. It might be in the basement. Again! She was sure it was below her somewhere.

"Oh!" Lettie started to her feet. "I hear him. It's Thad. Let me—"

The woman pushed her back into her seat. "You fool! Tain't nothing but cats."

Livestock Cooperation

Shows Good Results

Co-operative livestock marketing in Illinois is established on a solid basis, the volume of business being done in this line is increasing and good business methods rapidly are being adopted and put into practice by officials of co-operative livestock marketing organizations. This, in brief, sums up the reports made by those who attended the nine one-day shipping association school just held in different parts of the state by the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, according to E. T. Robbins, a member of the college animal husbandry department, who had charge of them.

A total of 206 shipping stations in approximately 80 counties were represented at the nine schools which were attended by more than 500 officials of co-operative livestock marketing organizations and 34 county farm advisers. Instruction given at the nine schools was designed to give officials and managers of the various co-operative livestock shipping associations now pointers on claims transportation, accounts, records, pre-rating marking, publicity, incorporation organization and the special problems of local managers and of agencies at central markets. The schools were held at Olney, Carbondale, Decatur, Gilman, Galesburg, Springfield, Dixon and Chicago.

How railway claims may be reduced ed in number and their settlement made easier was explained in detail by Lee J. Quasey, director of the transportation department of the Illinois Agricultural Association. The necessity for accurate accounts and carefully kept records was stressed by V. Vanman and J. C. Splitter, both of the agricultural college. Special attention at each of the meetings was given to the mid-west system of marketing livestock in view of the fact that most of the mistakes at the markets are due to poor marking and careless invoicing by managers.

Another subject that came in for special attention at the meetings was the matter of county organization. The details of this were explained in full by C. A. Stewart of the Illinois Agricultural Association, and Mr. Robbins. Consideration was given to the present tendency over the state which points toward closer union of all shipping associations within the individual counties and their alignment with the farm bureau.

AFFECTED WITH COUGHING FITS

TROPICAL BEAN PLANT IS

One species of plant life is known to cough. This is a certain bean that grows in the tropical regions.

The coughing plant is a very cranky member of the vegetable kingdom and has a great dislike for dust, says the Detroit News.

As soon as a few grains of it gather on its leaves the air chambers that cover the face of the leaves and are the breathing organs of the plants become filled with gas and swell until, with a slight explosion and a sound that resembles a human cough, the gas is expelled and blows away the troublesome dust.

This Man Wouldn't Stay Down

HE was putting in long hours at monotonous unskilled work. His small pay scarcely lasted from one week to the next. Pleasures were few and far between and he couldn't save a cent.

He was down—but he wouldn't stay down! He saw other men promoted, and he made up his mind that what they could do he could do. Then he found the reason they were promoted was because they had special training—an expert knowledge of some one line. So he made up his mind that he would get that kind of training.

He marked and mailed to Scranton a coupon like the one on the right. That was his first step upward. It brought him just the information he was looking for. He found he could get the training he needed right at home in the hours after supper. From that time on he spent part of his spare time studying.

The first reward was not long in coming—an increase in salary. Then came another. Then he was made Assistant Manager. Now he is Manager with an income that means independence and all the comforts and pleasures that make life worth living.

It just shows what a man with ambition can do. And this man is only one out of hundreds of thousands who have climbed the same steps to success with the help of the International Correspondence Schools.

What about you? Are you satisfied merely to hang on where you are or would you, too, like to have a real job and real money? It's entirely up to you. You don't have to stay down. You can climb to the position you want in the work you like best. Yes, you can! The I. C. S. is ready and anxious to come to you, wherever you are, with the very help you need.

Surely when you have an opportunity that means so much, you can't afford to let another priceless hour pass without at least finding out about it. And the way to do that is easy—without cost, without obligating yourself in any way, mark and mail this coupon.

Elimination of Bad Stretch Is Discussed

Elimination of the worst stretch of road on Grand avenue between Waukegan and Fox Lake—the place at the Gurnee subway—was discussed at a joint meeting of the road and bridge committee and the finance group of the board of supervisors at the office of Charles E. Russell, county superintendent of highways last Thursday.

The stretch of road under the subway and to both sides of it is about 1100 feet long and has proven to be the hardest trial for joy riders, pleasure parties and business men who drive into the country. In the wet weather the stretch is almost impassable and delays traffic considerably.

The cost of paving the stretch is estimated at about $7,000. The question of paving came up before the county board at its last meeting and was referred to the two committees which met yesterday. No definite action was taken by the two bodies, but recommendations were drawn up which will be presented to the board when it meets, on Saturday, March 29.

Paving of the new stretch leading to the new bridge will not be made for a couple of years as grading is now going on and the road will have to settle for awhile.

When the Gurnee stretch is paved it will make a complete concrete highway between Waukegan and Fox Lake and Waukegan and the state line.

Club boys with an estate of $1,000 or more now number in one Maryland county over 90, according to reports to the United States department of agriculture. The holdings consist of livestock which they are feeding and managing or crops they are producing under the guidance of their agricultural extension agents, together with money in the banks which they have realized from their club work. These young farmers range in age from about 14 to 19 years. One boy has holdings estimated worth about $3,500; two others are nearing that mark.

Usually Is Right.

New Patrol Roads Through McHenry County

The new County Patrol roads added to the system by the board of supervisors of McHenry county at its last session, includes the road from Reed's corner in Greenwood, north through Hebron to the Wisconsin line; the road starting just north of Crystal Lake through Ridgefield north past the Walkup corner and continuing to Senger's corner in Greenwood, connecting Route 19 between Crystal Lake and Ridgefield with Route 20 at Senger's corner, the east and west road in Hartland from the Alden-Woodstock road over McCarthy's crossing to the Harvard-Woodstock road; from the Evergreen school house in Seneca, west to the Harvard-Marengo road; three short pieces of road north west and south from Union to connect with the Grant highway and the Woodstock-Marengo road; from McHenry on the east side of Fox river south-east past Griswold's lake to Wauconda; from the Flye Corners in Coral west to a point on the Genoa-Marengo road; from Algonquin over the river on the county line east toward Barrington; also two short pieces, one east of Spring Grove and one north of Richmond.

Under the present law the county designates additional roads as County Patrol roads. Formerly they were new designation is better understood. The law provides that the State and County roads combined shall not exceed twenty-five percent of the total mileage in the county. This means about 250 miles in McHenry county.

The County Patrol roads are under the control of a road and bridge committee of the board of supervisors and under the supervision of County Highway Commissioner C. L. Tryon. These County Patrol roads are blocked off in stretches of about ten miles each, with a patrolman in charge. They are maintained and improved by taxation levied by the county, and include the most important and much traveled roads in the county not heretofore designated as State roads.

Sure Should.

Of Interest to Antioch Farmers

Timely topics and local news concerning stockmen, poultrymen, gardeners and dairymen. Edited by C. L. KUTIL

The Boast of a Chinch Bug
I'm a little chinch bug
I'll stay away from sight,
Here to spend the winter,
Where the cold and wind don't bite.

I'm covered up so easy
Beside the sheltering hedge
In grassy spot—on sunny slope
And along the woodland's edge.

Next summer you will find me
In millions I'll be seen,
I'll fly away to other fields
Where wheat is growing green.

And when the wheat is harvested
I'll travel to the corn,
I'll bring on all my children
And we'll work both eve and morn.

O, nothing do I fear or loathe,
Save the farmer's coal-oil torch
Which comes to burn me in my home,
O, say, how it does sear!

Just leave me unmolested
This entire winter thru,
And I'll bring out all my forces
To let you know who's who.

I'll destroy your corn and oats and wheat
As completely as can be
There'll be nothing left to harvest
If you'll leave it all to me."

This poem by C. A. Atwood tells very nicely concerning the chinch bug's habits. If we are to roast him now is the time to do it. The next three weeks should be taken advantage of, and all fence rows, lanes, etc., should be burned. An hour's burning may save a hundred bushels of corn or wheat next summer.

Preventing Smut in Grains

Slaking smut of wheat, covered smut of barley and smut of oats can be prevented by a very simple and inexpensive method.

1—Spread the seed to be treated on a clean floor or canvas.

2—Mix 1 pint of 40 percent formaldehyde in 35 gallons of water and use the mixture to sprinkle the seed. Use 1 gallon of the solution for each bushel of grain.

3—Shovel the grain over several times to make sure that all the kernels are wet.

4—Place the grain in a pile and cover with a canvas or tarpaulin for two hours.

5—Then spread out the grain so that it will dry quickly.

When dried it can be drilled in and chances are your field will be free from smut unless the smut spores come in from some other field or from the soil where they may have lived through the winter. If the seed is swelled very much after being treated you may have to set the drill to seed more thickly.

Crappies and Perch Now Game Fish

Changes made in the fish and game laws by the last session of the legislature and rulings by the state conservation commission of Wisconsin provide for a closed season on all game fish from March 1 to June 1 and for the first time bluegills, crappies and bullheads are classed as game fish.

This means that early spring fishing for these last four named fish is now prohibited, it being unlawful to catch them until June 1.

The season for trout of any variety opens May 1 and the daily bag limit is twenty-five.

The season for black bass opens June 15 and the daily bag limit is ten. On all other game fish the season opens June 1, there being no size limit, but with the following bag limit: Muskellunge 1, pike 10, pickerel 15, rock bass 30, white bass 50, bullheads 30 pounds.

There is no closed season on suckers, carp or redhorse.

Game fish is defined by the conservation commission to include bass of all varieties, muskellunge, pike, pickerel, bullheads, perch, bluegills, sunfish, crappie, roach, all varieties of trout caught in inland waters, whitefish, herring or elcso caught in inland waters.

$35,000 Asked By Darrow to Settle Case

It develops that Stephen Darrow, whose wife was the victim of Constable Bruce's bullet while walking along the street in Highland, has filed a formal claim with the supervisors of Lake county for $35,000, representing the sum which he would accept in settlement for his wife's injuries. On first thought, Darrow admits that it seems like a large sum, but he points to the fact that recently in an eastern state a man whose ear was shot off by a sponge squad was awarded a verdict of $75,000.

"I figure," said Darrow in speaking about his claim, "that $35,000 would be a small sum when you consider what my wife is going to have to go through the balance of her life. With her arm completely incapacitated it will mean from now on she will have to have help at home to take care of her household duties and our three children. We have three children, aged 11, 5 and 3, and even though she does recover from the very severe operation which she went through in Chicago a few days ago, it will mean that she will not be able to do her housework in the future as she did before she was shot."

"I understand the state's attorney promises the supervisors that he is shortly to turn over the county $21,000 and so it seems as though that partially answers the question raised by some of the supervisors as to how the county can get the money to make settlement." (Under the law however, the state's attorney's earnings have to be applied to the school fund).

Darrow says that the sentiment among members of the board is very favorable toward bringing about a settlement with him if such a thing is
